

Dem. Committee Primes to Crush Rebel Revolt

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Democratic National Committee was printed today to crush a revolt by Southern segregationists against its civil rights policies.

And to nail down its stand on this volatile issue, the committee was expected to vote commendation of National Chairman Paul M. Butler who has said that Southerners can accept a "strong civil rights plank in 1960 or go their own way."

The immediate issue before the party governing group was a home state attempt to oust Camille M. Gravel Jr., as Louisiana national committeeman because he had said segregation was morally wrong and because he had praised a civil rights bill passed by Congress last year.

Despairing of making any headway in the ouster attempt, Southern committee members voted 14-5 at a caucus Friday night to demand Gravel's resignation from the party's executive committee.

Gravel, who had been elected as a Dixie representative on that policy-making group after the 1956 presidential nominating convention, said he would not resign any party post. He added that the only charges against him were that he supported the national party's principles and its nominees.

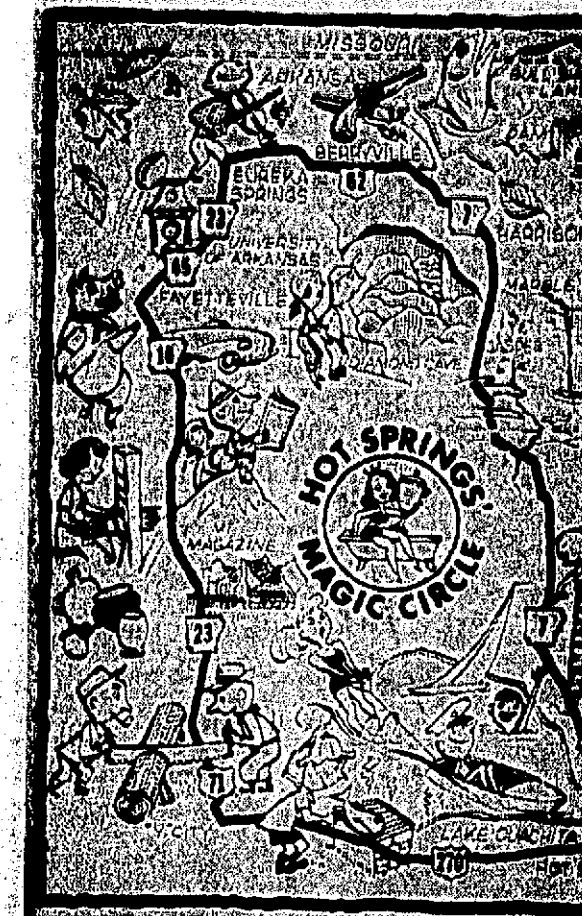

The Southern caucus voted to back Hugh M. Clayton, Mississippi national committeeman, as Gravel's successor on the executive group. Clayton told reporters he would abide by the National Committee's decision, which he obviously expected to go against him.

Gravel won 7-2 support from the party's Credentials Committee in his fight to keep from being replaced by Jett M. Talbot, as Louisiana national committeeman.

Talbot was named by the Louisiana State Committee in an October meeting to succeed Gravel, who had become involved in a political controversy with Gov. Earl K. Long.

The National Committee put off any final decision on where it will hold its 1960 convention. It has bids from Los Angeles, San Francisco, New York, Atlantic City, Miami Beach and Chicago.

'Magic Circle' Series Introduces Road Tours

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of suggested highway tour maps which Hope Star will publish on a weekly basis. The series will cover the South and Southwest during the winter months, and the Northern sections in the spring. This is excellent material to cut out and paste up in a scrapbook for future reference when planning your vacation trip.

By EDWARD COLLIER

Long ago Hot Springs was sacred to the Indians, a neutral territory. In 1844 came the first tourist, Horatio De Soto, who rested his weary bones in the healing waters after a fruitless search for gold. For years now, the Chamber of Commerce has claimed that "We Bathe the Nation."

Today this famed spa is something that could happen only in America. It is untypical of Arkansas, but has something reminiscent of many other parts of the nation. On the streets you see license plates from every state, attesting that it is the year-around hub of an expanding series of Magic Circles—a target point for weekend trips from neighboring Texas, Mississippi, Louisiana, Tennessee, Oklahoma and Missouri.

The set-up is peculiar. It is a national park, and yet a bustling city of commerce, curio shops, plush motels and hotels. Flourishing auction houses and antique stores make you think you are in Atlantic City; night clubs on the edge of the city offer stellar entertainment; that have a Nevada-like restaurant serves food specialties from Bohemian and Greek to Dutch and Kosher. My favorite is a local, unadvertised delicacy known as "cat fish and hush puppies," a comical concoction.

No Bets Missed

Not a tourist bet is missed. The thoroughbred horse racing kicks off the annual events with a meet starting February. From then on it's the State Music Festival, Easter Sunrise Pageant, Professional Fresh Water Fishing Championship, Fishing Derby, Spring Flower Show, State Band Festival, Open PGA Golf Tournament and four days of parades and entertainment for Miss Arkansas Beauty Pageant.

The big attraction still is the therapeutic and relaxing hot mineral water, strictly controlled by Uncle Sam. The 18 bath houses get their water from the 100 million gallons that flow daily from the 47 thermal springs.

Down town showplace is the majestic and jolly tree-bordered bath house row. The National Park Service administration building and museum has good displays of rocks, minerals, fossils. Nearby, one of the hot springs has been left open for display and public drinking purposes.

Final highlight of any trip here should be a drive to the top of Hot Springs Mountain, a fairland of majestic evergreens, oaks, rhododendrons, azaleas, lilacs, redbud and shrubs to insure year-around blossoms. From the observation tower, 771 feet above the city, there is a rewarding panorama of hills, valleys and lakes, wrapped in dense green and laid in every direction by ribbons of transcontinental highways.

Map Own Trip

Using Hot Springs as the starting point of a Magic Circle trip, as you would your own home town, we mapped a tour that would let us explore new highways and side roads to discovery. This led west (U.S. 270) to the blooming play grounds of Lake Ouachita and its hundreds of islands.

From completion of Elzevir Mountain Dam in 1924, this has been a popular area for fishing, sailing, boating, water skiing, water polo, swimming and camping. From here the drive is through

Army Launches Moon Rocket ; Fate Uncertain

By VERN HAUGLAND

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Army launched a 13 pound gold-plated cone thousands of miles into the sky today. But its fate was uncertain.

Scientists said it wasn't traveling fast enough or in a high enough trajectory to carry it to the far reaches of space.

However, as of 5:15 a.m. (EST) the space agency in Washington estimated it had reached 40,000 miles from earth.

Dr. T. Keith Glennan, head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, told a news conference here three hours after the firing that the 60-ton rocket carrier failed by 1,000 miles an hour to achieve the nearly 25,000 miles an hour speed needed to pull clear of the earth's main gravitational grip.

Glennan also said the four-stage rocket traveled 3 1/2 degrees below its prescribed course.

The slower-than-expected speed was attributed to a premature burnout in the first stage, a modified Jupiter intermediate range ballistic missile.

The Army had hoped to fire the instrumented probe past the moon and possibly out into an orbit around the sun.

But in Washington, Dr. William Pickering, director of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory of the California Institute of Technology, told reporters the space probe definitely would not get as far out as the moon, some 220,000 miles away.

Pickering declined to estimate whether the small satellite would go higher than the 70,000 miles achieved by the Air Force's Pioneer 1 lunar probe Oct. 11.

He said the probe definitely would not go into orbit around the earth. Another vehicle, certainly fall back and burn up as it reaches the atmosphere.

At a simultaneous news conference here, officials were somewhat more optimistic.

Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, head of the Army's missile ordnance command, said that "certain tolerances" were allowed in the assigned goals for the probe. He said it would take further tracking and computing to determine how far into space the 2-inch-long, 10-inch-wide, cone might venture.

Asked whether the probe eventually would fall back and burn up in the earth's atmosphere, Medaris said this was "highly questionable."

Medaris said the failure of the probe—called Pioneer III—to achieve the planned peak velocity was due primarily to the fact that the booster engine of the Jupiter first stage cut off three seconds too soon.

Greek Children Propagandists

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—Some of the Greek children taken behind the Iron Curtain by the Communists in the postwar revolt are proving first-rate propagandists for their kidnappers.

Only a select 200 of the estimated 27,000 taken away as babies and teenagers have been allowed to come home. They returned to isolated mountain villages where their parents still live, and were disillusioned by the primitive surroundings.

During 10 years in Communist custody, the youngsters had been given a favorable treatment. They now are dazzling villagers with the tales of the wonderful places they have seen.

UN Try for Cyprus Peace Talks Fizzle

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—U. N. efforts to launch peace talks for Cyprus fizzled today after a compromise plan failed to muster enough votes to ensure General Assembly approval.

The 81 nation Political Committee voted on three rival proposals late Thursday night after a confused procedural wrangle that climaxed two weeks of debate on Britain's crown colony in the east of the Mediterranean.

The only resolution to escape defeat as a much amended Iranian proposal approved 31-22 with 28 abstentions. This was still short of the two thirds majority needed in the Assembly.

The resolution called on Greece, Turkey and Britain—the nations disputing the future of Cyprus—to negotiate their differences. The Iranian plan was virtually doomed when Greece announced in advance that she would vote against it.

The committee defeated 17 to 17 with 47 abstentions, a Columbian plan for a U. N. study group to visit Cyprus and study the situation. It also rejected 11-22, with 48 abstentions, a Belgian proposal calling on the three nations to keep trying for agreement.

Four other resolutions, including a Greek call for U. N. approval of independence for Cyprus, were withdrawn.

The vote came after a day of heated debate which included a slashing Greek attack against the United States.

Greek Foreign Minister Evangelos Averoff Tossizza accused the United States of taking sides in the Cyprus dispute despite America's stated policy of neutrality on the three members of the North Atlantic Alliance.

The Greek diplomat made his Delegation Head, Cabot Lodge throw his support behind the Iranian resolution. Lodge, apparently trying not to add fuel to the incendiary situation, made no reply to the Greek charges.

Theme for Holiday Homes Pilgrimage From Shakespeare

By MARY ANITA LASETER

Appropriately enough, the theme for the first Holiday Homes Pilgrimage in Hope, sponsored by the Council of Garden Clubs, was taken from Shakespeare's "As You Like It." As you will like this tour of six homes, maybe we should take a closer look at the plans for it.

The six local Garden Clubs will depict the Christmas season of activities "Through the Ages" of people beginning with Small Folks at the home of Mrs. Cline Franks. Teenagers will inspire the decorations at the home of Mrs. E. L. Archer, Jr., followed by Young Collegians at Mrs. A. A. Halbert's home.

For the first Christmas in a home of their own, the tour will go to the home of Mrs. H. R. Hollingsworth. Then, at the home of Mrs. John Kelly, and the tour will conclude with Grandmother and Grandfather at Mrs. E. P. O'Neil's house.

Remembering that Christmas is primarily a religious occasion, the club members will have at each home a sacred emphasis suitable for the age depicted in the home. There will be: first, The Manger; second, Carols; third, Three Wise Men; fourth, Angels Proclamation; fifth, Church; sixth, Open Bible.

Since the clubs themselves—Daffodil, Azalea, Iris, Gardenia, Lilac, and Rose—sound like the prettiest of floral bouquets, it is not surprising that their first Holiday Homes Pilgrimage will have colors in it to please the taste of everyone.

Two of the homes will use a variety of traditional colors in their decorations, while another home will have only red and green. White and green is the color scheme for one, pink and silver for another, and red and white for still another.

The Azalea and the Rose are the Council Club Sponsors for the Holiday Homes Pilgrimage to be held on December 11, from 2 until 6 p. m. Light refreshments will be served at the last home on the tour. Everyone is looking forward to this second of events for the Yuletide season in Hope. Of course, the season was opened officially this week with the annual Christmas Parade.

Mark December 11 on your calendar, and go on the Holiday Homes Pilgrimage to see what the tour means to "the whole world." All the world's a stage. And all the men and women merely players. They have their exits and their entrances; And one man in his time plays many parts. His acts being (six) ages.

American Flier Held as Pawn in East Germany

By REINHOLD G. ENSZ

BERLIN (AP)—An American flier who parachuted into East Germany was held today as a pawn in the Berlin situation.

An East German official, identified Lt. Richard Mackin would be returned to the U.S. Army only through direct negotiations with the East German satellite regime. Mackin became lost and bailed out behind the Iron Curtain Wednesday.

The Communists accused West Germany of trying to prevent German unification.

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said Friday the West would settle the Berlin problem before getting bogged down in other long-stalemated German problems such as unification. The East German Communists promptly charged him with opposing any move to bring together the Western and Eastern German states.

The Western Big Three who occupy West Berlin refuse to recognize the East German regime or have any negotiations with it. This affects both the Mackin case and Soviet efforts to make the United States, Britain and France deal with East Germany for access to Berlin.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev threatened to turn over to East Germany in six months the Soviet controls over transportation from West Germany to the isolated city 110 miles inside East Germany.

The Soviet boss wants the West to get out, leaving West Berlin a demilitarized, free city at the mercy of surrounding Soviet and satellite troops.

The Allies refuse to budge, saying they will stick by the pledges to protect the 2,000,000 residents of West Berlin. But both Washington and London have suggested that the Khrushchev proposals could be the basis for reopening discussions on reunifying Germany, which has been split since World War II.

Mackin, 27, was flying a small Army liaison plane when he bailed came lost, crossed the East German border, ran out of gasoline and had to jump feet first into the Berlin situation.

The pilot, from Washington, D.C., was held for two days before the East Germans admitted they had him. Then a Communist district official said, "The Americans will have to talk to us about the pilot."

Warden Just Went in and Got His Guards

FLORENCE, Ariz. (AP)—What was in the mind of Warden Frank Eymann of the Arizona State Prison as he faced down rebellious prisoners who had threatened to kill his guards?

"You think you are going in there to get your guards," said the bronzed-faced man with gimlet blue eyes.

"I thought I was going to have to kill 15 or 20. I'm lucky I didn't," Eymann personally led an assault by 25 men on 40 prisoners who had barricaded themselves within the walls of Arizona's prison Thursday night.

The prisoners released their two hostages.

"We were well-prepared, well-organized," said the 60-year-old veteran of 38 years in law enforcement.

Eymann, warden of the prison since January 1955, said he had long ago decided he would act just as he did in the event of a riot.

"Every man here knows my orders," he said. "If they get taken, we give the men time to think, then move in. I make no concessions."

A native of Joliet, Ill., the 7-foot-8 1/2" warden is a veteran of World Wars I and II. He retired as chief of detectives and assistant police chief of Tucson in 1950 and had just been elected to a third term as Pima County sheriff at Tucson when appointed warden.

Youth Claims He Shot Man in Oklahoma

ROGERS, Ark. (AP)—Rogers Police Chief J. Q. Morrison said a youth arrested here early today related he shot and killed a motorist near Bristow, Okla., last night, and then took the man's automobile.

The prisoner was booked as James French, 20, of San Jose, Calif.

Morrison quoted him as saying he hid the body of the man killed in some weeds near Bristow. The man tentatively identified from papers and the car license as Franklin Bone, about 30, of Morristown, W. Va.

French was driving the car when Morrison and Police Officer Bill Danison picked him up this morning.

Morrison said French related that he was hitch-hiking when the motorist picked him up near Amarillo, Tex. Somewhere in Oklahoma, French, the chief said, drew a pistol and tried to force Bone to drive to Memphis to cash some government bonds the latter had. Why Memphis was specified was not made clear.

According to Morrison, French told him the two argued but that finally Bone definitely refused French's demand.

It was then that French shot Bone through the temple, hid his body and took his car, Morrison said.

A discharged bullet and fresh blood were found in the automobile, Morrison reported.

Oklahoma officers were notified and began a search for the body. Morrison said French was unable to describe in much detail where the body had been hidden. It was not clear if he was not familiar with the area.

The police chief said a Tulsa station operator at Noel, Mo., became suspicious when French was in some blood from the automobile. The operator phoned the Missouri Highway Patrol and the patrol issued an alert.

Washington Paper Held Up by Strike

WASHINGTON (AP)—A strike by the Washington Newspaper Guild today held up publication of the Washington Evening Star.

A number of mechanical employees gathered across the street from the Star building and refused to cross strike picket lines after one of their number was engaged in a picket line scuffle.

Star officials said they had enough people on the job in other departments to go to press but were short on printers and stereotypers.

Members of the Star guild unit, taking in both news and business office workers, voted 104-46 in a post-midnight meeting to strike rather than accept management's latest terms.

Wages and length of the work week were described as the chief issue in the dispute.

The Star guildsmen rejected the newspaper's latest offer of a graduated wage increase of $8 a week the first year, $3 the second year and $3 for the third year of a three-year contract.

The guild is asking an increase of $8 the first year, $4 the second and $3 the third year over the present top minimum of $127 a week for reporters and photographers.

Sunday Buys Out Another Firm

TULSA (AP)—D-X Sunray Oil Co. of Tulsa yesterday bought out the bulk plants and service stations operated by Tidewater Oil Co. in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Iowa, Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota and the Dakotas.

Officials of the two companies said the transaction involved more than 500 bulk plants, service stations, dealers, jobbers and distributors.

The terms were not disclosed.

Airliner Missing With 21 Aboard

MADRID (AP)—Bad weather throughout central Spain today postponed an air search for a Spanish airliner missing with 21 persons aboard.

The four-engine commercial plane left Vigo northwest Spain at 4:45 p. m. Thursday and was reported at 5:30, said it was over Madrid, 100 miles northwest of Vigo, and was having trouble with its communication equipment.

Those aboard all apparently were Spanish.

Russia Observes Constitution

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union celebrated the 22nd anniversary of its Constitution today by asserting that Russia has genuine democracy but the capitalist countries don't. All Moscow newspapers carried editorials praising the Constitution which says "freedom of speech, press, assembly, street processions and demonstrations" are guaranteed.

County Has to Give Own Bonds Priority

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A county must give priority to its own bonds when investing its surplus money, the attorney general's office ruled today.

The opinion was requested by justice of the peace Fred Reed Sr. of Pineville.

In other opinions, the attorney general's office said, a local board cannot function later than the third Monday in November, and that a mayor may also be elected as director of a school district.

Thumb Means Same in Any Language

By GORDON BEARD

ABERDEEN, Md. (AP)—The raised thumb means "Going my way?" no matter where the hitchhiker seeks a lift.

"It's part of the international sign language," say a pair of young Dutch women with more than nine years' experience in hitchhiking rides.

Robby Van Der Maal and Josée Lange Wenden have visited 57 countries since leaving their native Amsterdam June 9, 1949. They have seen Europe, the Middle East, Africa, South America and have been in the United States about four weeks.

In Maryland, they are staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Shoup here. Mrs. Shoup met them in Turkey. The next stop then in Turkey.

The world travelers carry some 60 pounds of luggage, including camping equipment, plus cameras and other small items. Perhaps most important are a pair of suitcases they use to earn money for food and transportation—when free rides aren't possible. They sing folk songs, favorites of various countries and original compositions.

Robby and Josée have entertained Dr. Albert Schweitzer in Africa, the French Foreign Legion in the palace of the Sultan of Morocco, aboard Prince Philip's warship Maccia at Gibraltar, in the house of Tito, and for an Italian baron.

When the trip ends, the women hope to give lectures with the aid of films they have taken. And Josée wants to use her diary notes to write a book.

THE STORY: Hope and Adam have been married 10 years. She feels that there is a lack between herself and her husband, and she cannot understand it, because they are happily married. Her husband can talk to Marjorie, the widow of his business partner, but he cannot talk to Hope.

Chapter IV

The place in which they spent their holiday was not too far nor too close. Mrs. Riggs decided to vacation with her sister, a man would occasionally look in to see there has been no fire, breaking or entering. He would also cut the temperamental grass, weed Hope's garden, and shake his head over Adam's vegetables. Jupiter went on with them, but he stayed with Adam was always a holiday for Jupiter.

They fished in the cove from the rowboat that went with the cottage and their efforts were lucky or not lucky. It depends whether you are the fish or the fisherman.

Because it was after season and the water cold, they generally had the beach to themselves. They swam, and Jupiter with them. They sat on benches, bled, and looked away, up the hill or across the inlet, and grew evenly brown, for the weather was usually golden, as comfortable as an old person dreaming by the fire, yet still vigorous. Only the water, really knew summer was over. They swam to a moored boat and hung on, each with one hand holding the other by a shoulder, sometimes they let go and came up laughing and Hope's hair escaped the cap and her wet face was tawny pink.

A kiss in swimming is elusive; cool as water, warm as sun, salt as tears.

One evening after supper they went to the sunset-looking beach and there were people ahead of them. A young woman in a shapeless shirt and shorts went wading in the tinted pools with two small children.

Another evening there were people pouring out from a cottage, two little boys, a third who climbed in the sand, and a thin girl, child with pigtails, and with them the parent. The man was stocky and strong, as was his wife. They played with their children and once ran to see if the little one was hurt when, barefoot, he stumbled over a stone. As they played they laughed, and it was harmony.

That evening when they returned to their cottage Adam rebuilt the fire and they sat in front of it, each in a big chair, and looked at the blue-green flame, for there was distrust among the dogs and the salt had generated the volatile peacock blaze.

"Come here, woman," said Adam, "you're so far away."

"I'm never," she denied. She curled her toes beneath her feet, but just stay here."

Unconsciously she reminded her that usually she was docile. Jupiter looked up from beside Adam. Jupiter smelled of salt also, regrettably of fish and a long-defunct crab recently discovered.

Stocking Problems

The other evening we chanced to overhear a rather heated discussion carried on by a group of young men in hunting clothes. This was not a case of cavewatching; there was no need. The conversation was in tones loud enough to be heard clearly in all parts of the room. It seems that the boys had found little or no game that day, so they were giving the Game Commission what-for.

"No wonder we got no game. Too many foxes."

"Right! They ought to put a bounty on foxes."

"Now, that ain't it. We always had foxes. Trouble is, their stocking programs lousy. What we pay our money for each year, buyin' a license."

And so on, ad infinitum. That seems to be the usual solution of the uninformed — stocking.

You who hunt ruffed grouse know that this bird, once plentiful, has suffered serious reverses. Where once there were 50 birds, now there is one or, more probably, none. All right — why not stock grouse?

For a great many years every effort was made to do exactly that. From the beginning, difficulties were encountered. Wild birds, which had been trapped, soon died in captivity. Then the game biologists learned that grouse chicks, hatched in an incubator from eggs that had been brought in from natural grouse cover, could be raised to adulthood on wire.

The next job was to get eggs from the captive birds. Nothing doing. They simply would not breed in captivity. After many years of heartbreaking failure, the game biologists came to the inescapable conclusion that they had been walking down a dead-end street. That was not the solution.

Of course, every effort has been made and is being made to provide adequate food and cover for our native grouse. It has been proven, rather conclusively that the ruffed grouse must work out his own salvation, aided as much as possible by our biologists.

In former years, the bobwhite quail was the number one game bird of the country. These appealing little birds were pretty much everywhere, and they supplied excellent sports as well as being ideal both for wing shooting and dog work.

On the days of good quail, so far as shooting is concerned, the decline of this wonderful little bird can be credited to two major causes — inadequate natural food and cover and too heavy gun pressure.

So the game commissions in the various states decided to stock quail. There was little trouble in raising these birds in captivity. Trouble was, the little pen-reared birds simply did not have what it took for them to survive in open country. Not only were they easy prey to predators also, they were not hard enough to withstand extreme weather. So, year after year, stocked quail simply disappeared.

Recently word has come from Tennessee, formerly a great quail state. Their conservation commission regretfully decided to discontinue stocking pen-reared quail. Studies which extended over a period of many years showed that only about three per cent of the stocked quail fell to the hunter's gun.

On this basis, every quail in a hunter's game bag was costing the Commission about $35. Now the Commission has an improved management program with improved natural food and cover conditions.

Of course, both the Federal and State conservation commissions have been fully aware of this changing picture. With the increase in population there has, of course, been a decided change in our great outdoors. Native birds, such as grouse, quail, partridge, chicken, sharp-shinned grouse, etc., simply have not been able to adapt themselves to the changing conditions.

In the earnest attempt to take up the slack and populate over-covers with birds which will thrive under present-day conditions, almost every game bird that flies anywhere in the world has been studied carefully and in many cases, given a trial in our covers. The great majority have been hopeless failures.

One exotic species, however, has been a notable success — the ring-necked pheasant. This colorful fellow and his little drab hen have made running in areas where upland shooting was just about a thing of the past. The ringneck has given us much for which to be thankful.

Trouble is, the ringneck does not thrive in the warmer climate south of the Mason-Dixon line. So now the problem is to find an import which will lend itself to conditions as they are in the Southern States. There are several likely prospects, one of them the red-legged partridge of Spain.

But stocking of itself, certainly is not the entire answer. Obviously, a stocked bird cannot survive and prosper unless he can find natural food and adequate cover. Pheasants, partridge, over-grazed wood lots, etc., have little to offer a stocked bird.

There have been plans suggested whereby farmers can be subsidized by the State in return for provisions for food and cover for the birds on their farms. Some of these programs make a great deal of sense and we hope for their wider adoption.

So the next time you feel like belonging your Game Commission, take the trouble to talk to one of the men connected with this important body of men. Here you have been given only a general idea of the many and complex problems which the game management. Believe me, the job is not an easy one or one which is being slacked in any way. An hour's talk with any member of your commission or with one of your wardens will give you an entirely new look at the over-all picture.

Emphasizes Importance of Polio Shots

WASHINGTON (AP) — The importance of having children under 5 years of age protected with Salk polio vaccine was emphasized today by new statistics.

The Public Health Service said summaries from Arkansas, Colorado, New York State (excluding New York City), North Carolina and Oklahoma show that more than one-third of all paralytic cases this year were among children under 5.

For all ages there were 181 paralytic cases, with 67 of them in such children.

Forty-five of the paralytic cases were in children who had received no vaccine, seven had received one shot, six had received two, seven had received the recommended three, and vaccination status was not reported for two cases.

"The percentage of cases in children under 5 years of age in each of the states varied from about 23 per cent in New York to about 60 per cent in North Carolina," the service said.

"The percentage of cases in children who had received no vaccine ranged from about 30 per cent in Oklahoma to 100 per cent in Colorado, where there were only five cases in children under 5 years of age."

There were deaths attributed to polio in persons who had had three shots, all of the victims being more than 4 years old, and three of them in North Carolina being over 14 years of age.

Cox said that while Arkansas' bears do not go into full-fledged hibernation during the state's relatively mild winters, they do become sluggish and inactive.

A bear recently was shot in Springdale and others were sighted earlier in various sections of the state, including Jonesboro.

Cox said the bears normally are not dangerous and only become dangerous when wounded. Usually the animals are rather timid and elusive, he said.

But, Cox continued, the Game and Fish Commission wants to get rid of the "garbage raider" either by donating him to a zoo or killing him. He again urged that any one spotting bears notify the commission or local police.

This year the commission trapped 20 black bears in Minnesota and brought them to Arkansas. The animals were imported in an attempt to build up Arkansas' bear population with the hope that the state some day could have a bear hunting season.

"We went into the wilds to avoid getting garbage raiders, but we may have inadvertently gotten one or two," Cox said.

He estimated that Arkansas' present bear population totals between 400 and 500, with most of them in the White River bottoms and the Ozark Mountains.

Alford to Have Office Choice

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Dr. Dale Alford of Little Rock, congressman-elect from the Fifth District, will have first choice for office space among the 77 new members of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Clude Carpenter Jr., who will be Alford's administrative assistant, telephoned from Washington today that he had drawn No. 1 for Alford in selection of office space.

Alford, a write-in candidate, defeated Rep. Brooks Hays (D-Ark) in the general election.

We're not having an office Christmas party this year. How about your firm?

It appears that the custom of having office Christmas parties is going the way of high button shoes and high-button shoes.

Bears to Go Into Semi Hibernation

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansians can expect fewer bear sightings during the winter months, Nelson Cox, director of the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission, said today.

Cox said that while Arkansas' bears do not go into full-fledged hibernation during the state's relatively mild winters, they do become sluggish and inactive.

A bear recently was shot in Springdale and others were sighted earlier in various sections of the state, including Jonesboro.

Cox said the bears normally are not dangerous and only become dangerous when wounded. Usually the animals are rather timid and elusive, he said.

Killed Man for Not Jumping Into a Pool

LOS ANGELES (AP)—I want to see him jump into a swimming pool to humiliate himself and be killed," says painting contractor Howard Newman, 44, his neighbor for 10 years, who shot and killed a man who refused to jump into a pool.

Newman, 44, was indicted on suspicion of murder after Roger Mackenzie, 44, his neighbor for 10 years, was shot and killed in front of startled workers.

Newman, of suburban Pacoima, was contractor on a painting job in progress at a swimming pool company office. Sheriff's deputies said he told this story:

He became angered at Mackenzie Wednesday when the union official pulled a union painter off the job because Newman had hired non-union workers.

"Mackenzie came right on the job and pulled one man off that he knew was a union man," said Newman. "I brought a gun to work, knowing Mackenzie would return."

"When he did show up I said to myself, 'I'm gonna make that guy walk over to the swimming pool. I want him to jump into the pool to humiliate himself. . . . I told him to walk, and when he refused I shot him in the stomach. Even after I shot him the first time I still wanted to make him walk to the pool and jump in.'"

Mackenzie turned and ran. Newman shot him in the back and leg. Mackenzie fell. Newman covered the victim. Newman turned his head over and shot him again at close range behind the left ear, witnesses said.

Newman went to his office, laid the gun on his secretary's desk and told her to call the police.

May Set Off Moon Rocket by Weekend

By JOHN BARBOUR
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A huge U.S. moon rocket—short on brains but long on brawn—may blast into space this weekend on a trip that could take just 84 hours, but might last millions of years.

"It is the U.S. Army's first shot at the moon and like its Explorer satellite shots, the Army hasn't spared the horses."

This is perhaps the greatest difference between the planned Army probe and the last three shots by the U.S. Air Force, one of which reached as high as 79,000 miles.

The Air Force satellite weighed about 85 pounds. It was aimed at an orbit or at least a single trip around the moon. In its final stage it carried the electronic brains and maneuvering rocket to do the job.

The 30-pound Army shot is less ambitious. It too is aimed at the moon with the intention of hitting the lunar surface. But it all works well. It may be destined for a greater glory.

The Army has packed its rocket, dubbed Juno II, with enough power and speed to overcome the pull of the earth's gravity shot, says it has a 1 in 2 chance of building up escape velocity—and so blasting away from the earth into a possible orbit around the sun.

Such an orbit might last millions of years.

This assumes first that all the moon rocket's engines will fire and that it will overshoot the moon.

The moon is not an easy target to hit. So many things are unknown about its mass and behavior that it can easily be missed.

Just as unpredictable is the behavior of the moon rocket itself.

The Army has kept mum on its rocket plans, because it said it doesn't want to occasion a build-up of public expectancy and the consequent pressure on its rocket people.

But two days ago the service tower was pulled back from the big moon rocket at Cape Canaveral, Fla., and it stood with its nose only shrouded.

Except The LORD Build The HOUSE They Labor In Vain That Build It

Is It Clear to YOU?

Do you find it hard to read?
Is its language too out of date? Have you imagined it contradicts its self?
Are you of the opinion God's love for us is a paradox?
Do you think if God really loved us He would let us be sick, experience pain and suffer death? Is the Bible actually hard for you to understand? If your answer is "yes," then you should enroll in Sunday School, start going to church regularly and join the band of honest, serious seekers after God's own will in your life; the true interpretation of His word. To the believer the Bible makes sense, it is easy to understand and in it there are no contradictions.
It is really the Book of Life.
